Govt looks to give legal cover to undercover ops: Rajnath Singh

New Delhi: The Modi government is working on strengthening the anti-terror law to provide legal protection for undercover operations, Union home minister Rajnath Singh said here on Friday. The statement assumes significance given that some key intelligence-based counter-terror operations in the past, including neutralisation of an LeT module in 2004 that left Mumbra girl Ishrat Jahan dead, have seen intelligence officers face criminal investigation. Addressing the 'National Conference on Investigating Agencies' organised by the Bureau of Police Research & Development (BPR&D) here, Singh said: "Our government is committed to punish terrorists. We are working to strengthen the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act and the NIA Act. We are considering legal protection for undercover operation, use of intelligence collected as evidence and entire gamut of issues relevant to combating terrorism". TNN
